

Leonard Blank

Residence: A native Charlestonian grew up West of the Ashley in Windermere. Resides in Clark's Point subdivision and has lived on James Island for over 44 years.

Education: Educated in local public schools. Veteran student at the Citadel for two years. Completed Executive Education Programs at the Darden School of Business at the University of Virginia.

Occupation: Four year USAF Veteran and retired after 29 years of service at the Charleston Naval Shipyard as a Service Group Superintendent.

Family: Married to the former Pam Schumacher with three children and six grandchildren.

Civic/Community Activities: Formerly served on the Advisory Board for Trident Technical College, the Redevelopment Board for Charleston Naval Shipyard, and on the Board of Directors of Sea Island Habitat for Humanity Resale Store as President. Currently volunteers with Rebuilding Together, Christmas in April and Sea Island Habitat for Humanity's Operation Board. Member of Christ St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Political Experience: Elected for two terms to James Island Town Council . Chairman of the Planning Commission for the former Town of James Island for three years and held the position of Planning Coordinator. Instrumental in developing the Town of James Island's Land Use Plan. Former member of the James Island Alliance for Self-Government. Currently Chairman of the Town's Planning and Zoning Committee.